

FIFA World Cup 2026: On demand medical and security support

The FIFA World Cup 2026 will be the largest tournament ever staged - spanning 16 cities across the United States, Canada and Mexico. For organisations sending staff, executives or clients, this scale brings new logistical and safety challenges.

For companies with employees or guests attending matches, hospitality events or sponsor activities, the duty of care remains clear: ensure people are informed, supported and able to access help quickly if anything goes wrong.

Flexible, on demand support for global mobility

Healix On Demand gives organisations one simple route to real support on the ground - from protective services to live intelligence and on-site specialists - so teams can move with confidence.

- Ground support and protective services: Practical help and protection on the ground to advise, coordinate and respond as conditions change.
- Defensive scanning, event monitoring and intelligence alerts: Live insight on prescient security risks operational disruption surrounding and event-specific issues.
- Event security and medical support: Ready-to-deploy teams to support large gatherings or VIP activity.

Experience that strengthens preparation

We've worked alongside clients at flagship global sporting events across football, golf, motorsport and the Olympic stage.

Drawing on this experience, we help organisations plan in a way that's flexible and scalable. You avoid tying up resources, while still having support that can step in fast if plans change - whether through travel disruption, a medical issue or a wider security concern.

Case study 1

We gave a travelling team clear, real-time insight during a major golfing event, cutting through heavy media noise to flag genuine risks early. Our analysts tracked local sentiment, monitored fast shifts around the venue and shared concise alerts and daily updates. This helped the client brief staff, adjust plans and move with confidence throughout the tournament.

Case study 2

We helped a major broadcaster deliver dependable, on-site medical support at large sporting events. We deployed fully equipped clinics and specialised medical teams on six separate occasions. The result: smooth medical cover, rapid response in unpredictable settings, confidentiality maintained, and peace of mind for staff and leadership alike.

Enjoy the tournament, stay protected

The largest World Cup ever hosted will be an extraordinary global moment, but such events always bring uncertainty. With adaptable, on demand medical and security support in place, organisations can protect their people, maintain confidence and keep their focus where it belongs: on the football.

Organisations can access this level of flexible, expert support through Healix On Demand - a service designed to provide medical and security assistance only when and where it's needed.
