

Healix

Healix Embedded Solutions

Expertise embedded.
Capability multiplied.

Building capability from within

Organisations increasingly rely on embedded professionals to access specialist expertise, strengthen stretched teams and build new capabilities.

But simply placing an individual into a role is not enough.

Healix Embedded Solutions integrates experienced clinical, intelligence and security professionals directly into your organisation, while providing access to wider expertise, governance and support that help build capability over the long term.

Our specialists become part of your team, working alongside your people and contributing directly to your objectives. They bring specialist knowledge, operational experience and the support needed to succeed in complex environments.

You gain more than an individual. You gain expertise, continuity and capability designed to last.

Greater transparency. Clearer value.

Too often, organisations have limited visibility into what sits behind an embedded resource, how services are supported and where value is actually being created.

Clients rightly ask what they're paying for beyond the individual, why they wouldn't simply hire directly and how they can be confident they're investing in long-term capability rather than short-term resource.

Healix takes a different approach, providing greater transparency into the expertise, governance, development and support that underpin every embedded role, making it easier to understand where value is being created.

Because the value of an embedded solution isn't just the person sitting in the seat. It's the capability, continuity and support network that help them deliver exceptional outcomes.

“Organisations often treat embedded support as putting a person in a seat and adding a margin. We don't think that's good enough.

Clients should know what they are paying for, where their provider is adding value and what sits behind the individual working within their organisation.”

James Henderson,
CEO, Healix International

Most providers embed people. Healix embeds capability.

The value of an embedded solution shouldn't stop with the individual.

Every Healix embedded professional remains connected to specialist colleagues, established methodologies and professional networks across clinical, intelligence and security.

This reach-back model enables our people to draw on wider knowledge, share best practice and bring additional insight into your organisation.

Whether you need one specialist, a dedicated team or a managed embedded function, you benefit from people integrated into your organisation with access to wider expertise and support when they need it.

Why not hire directly?

Because you're not just gaining an individual.

You're gaining access to wider expertise, governance, development, quality assurance and support that help capability grow, evolve and endure over time.

CAPABILITY IN ACTION

Strengthening strategic security capability

Challenge

A multinational organisation needed additional strategic analytical capability to improve decision-making, enhance situational awareness and provide greater insight across its security operations.

Solution

Healix embedded an experienced Strategic Analyst within the client's security team. The analyst delivered intelligence briefings, site security audits, country risk assessments and strategic analysis to support leadership decision-making.

Impact

The analyst quickly became a trusted member of the team, making a measurable contribution to the client's security function. Following the success of the engagement, the client explored opportunities to expand the capability further through additional embedded support.

“The quality of the embedded support provided has exceeded our expectations. The resource seamlessly integrated into our organization, rapidly mastered complex challenges, and became a trusted extension of our team. Their expertise, adaptability, and ability to deliver meaningful results from day one have helped accelerate key strategic priorities while generating immediate and measurable value.”

MedTech client

People make the difference

Technical expertise matters, but it isn't enough.

Successful embedded professionals need the character and judgement to build trust, understand your organisation and become genuine extensions of your team.

That's why we select our people for more than technical capability. We look for professionals who can collaborate, adapt and build the trusted relationships that create long-term value.

Our investment doesn't stop when they're embedded. Through the Healix Academy and ongoing professional development, our specialists continue to build their expertise throughout their assignment, helping ensure clients benefit from current knowledge, fresh thinking and evolving best practice.

That investment supports performance, retention and continuity, helping protect knowledge and trusted relationships.

Supported. Governed. Accountable.

Embedded doesn't mean unsupported. Healix remains actively involved throughout every engagement, with structured governance, quality assurance, performance management and professional oversight built into the model.

You gain the responsiveness and insight of someone working within your team, with the reassurance of a wider organisation supporting them.

CAPABILITY IN ACTION

Security leadership in a high-risk environment

Challenge

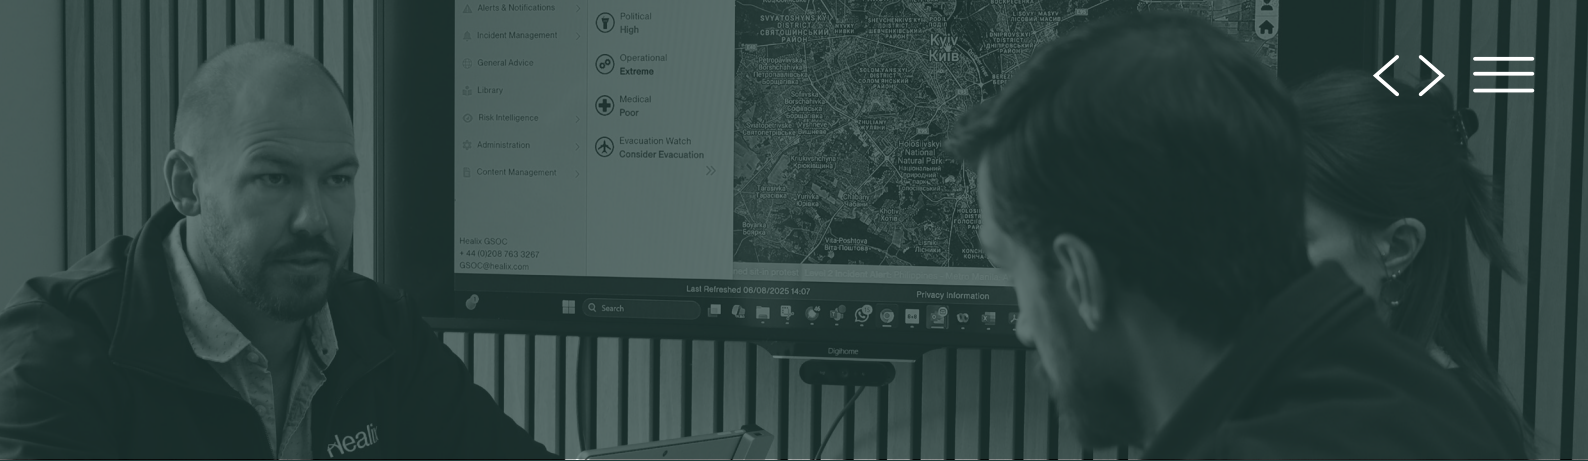

An organisation operating in Ukraine required experienced security leadership to support personnel, assets and business operations during a period of heightened risk and uncertainty.

Solution

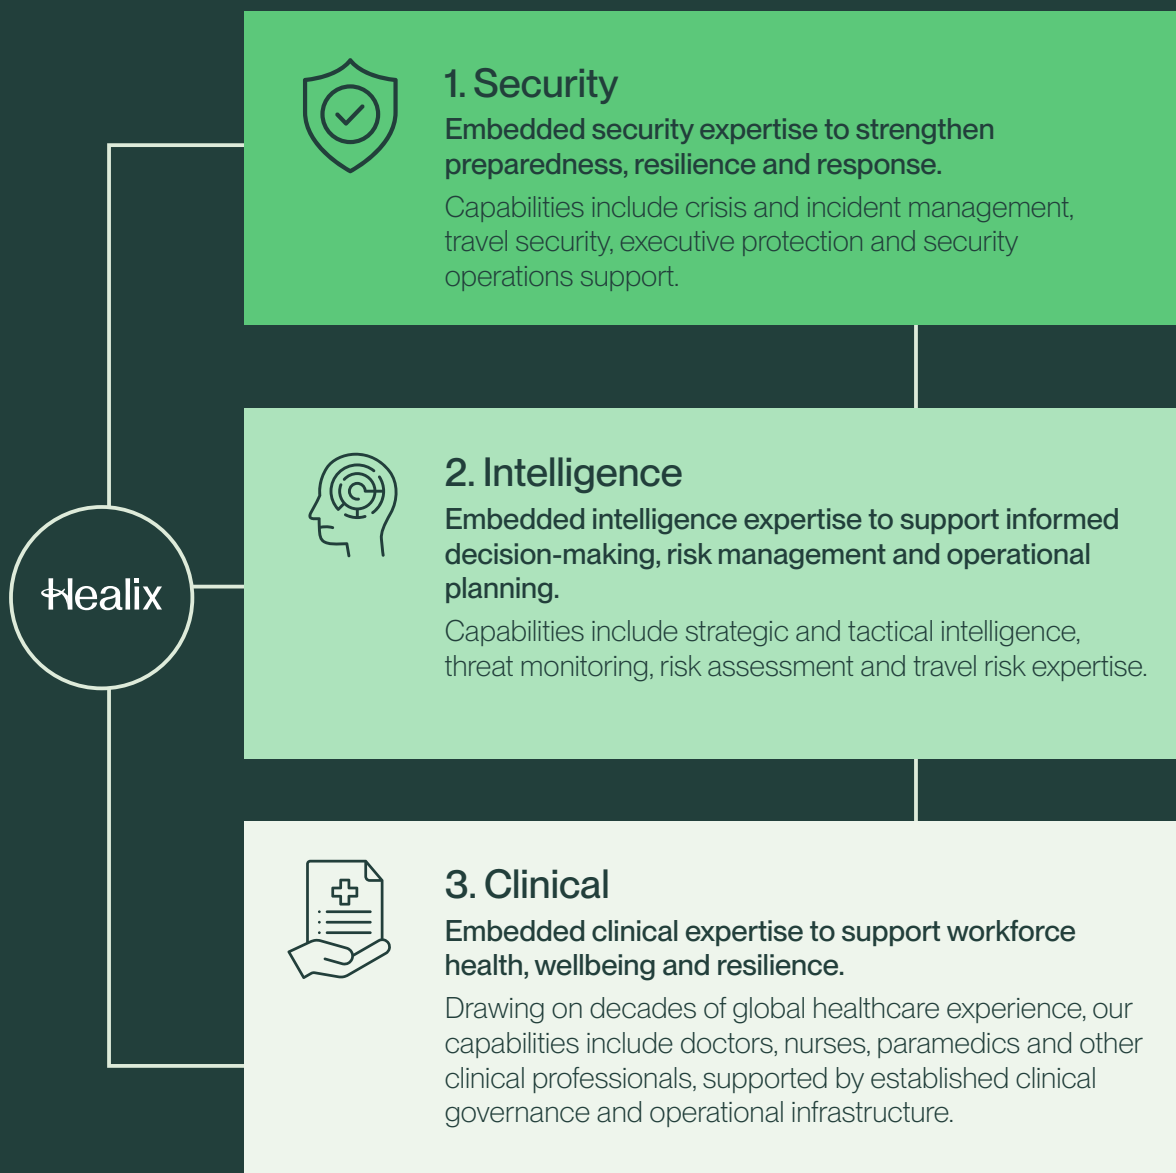

Healix embedded two experienced Security Managers to oversee security activity, support senior stakeholders, coordinate risk mitigation measures and help maintain business continuity in a complex operating environment.

Impact

The Security Managers became trusted members of the client's operation, delivering practical security leadership and risk management support. Their impact was recognised through multiple contract renewals despite wider cost pressures and budget constraints.

Three disciplines. One Healix.

Integrated capability

Complex challenges rarely sit neatly within one discipline.

Healix's expertise across clinical, intelligence and security means we can bring capabilities together within a single embedded solution, creating a more connected approach to protecting your people and strengthening organisational resilience.

Capability that evolves with you

Your requirements won't always stay the same. Your embedded capability shouldn't have to either.

From an individual specialist to a dedicated team or managed capability, support can be delivered on-site, remotely or through a hybrid approach.

As requirements evolve, additional expertise and surge support can be scoped through Healix.

CAPABILITY IN ACTION

Travel risk intelligence across Asia Pacific

Challenge

A multinational organisation required dedicated travel risk and intelligence support to protect its people, maintain awareness of emerging threats and support decision making across Asia Pacific.

Solution

Through the Healix Academy, we identified and developed a high-potential individual with the judgement, aptitude and analytical capability required for the role. Following targeted training and mentoring, the individual was embedded within the client's travel risk and intelligence function.

Impact

The specialist provides intelligence monitoring, risk assessments, travel risk advice and stakeholder support across a diverse regional operating environment. Multiple contract renewals have demonstrated sustained client confidence in both the individual and the wider embedded capability.

More than a placement. A capability partnership.

The question isn't simply who you can put into a role. It's what sits behind them.

With Healix Embedded Solutions, you gain exceptional people embedded within your organisation, with access to the expertise, development, oversight and support needed to deliver long-term outcomes.

The result is a model built around capability, continuity and trust, not transactional staffing.

Ready to strengthen capability from within?

Talk to our team about an Embedded Solution designed for your organisation.

healix.com

enquiries@healix.com

+44 (0)20 8481 7720